

Water Dialogues

A pilot project in collaborative podcasting

Lindsay Day, MSc Candidate
Department of Population Medicine
University of Guelph

Ken Paul, Maliseet First Nation
Director of Fisheries at Atlantic Policy Congress of First Nation Chiefs

Research project:

How can we use Indigenous and Western knowledge systems together to address water issues in Canada?

Principal Investigators:

Heather Castleden, Queens University
Sherilee Harper, University of Guelph
Ashlee Cunsolo, Labrador Institute
Debbie Martin, Dalhousie University

+ National Advisory Committee

Research project:

How can we use Indigenous and Western knowledge systems together to address water issues in Canada?

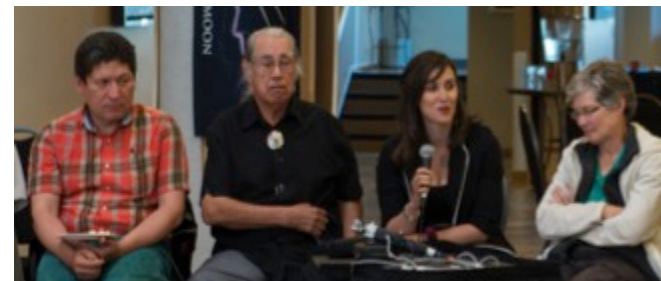

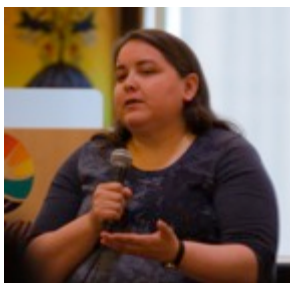

© Lori Hoddinott

-
- Water Gathering
 - Literature review + Interviews
 - Draft report
 - Water Gathering II

What is a podcast?

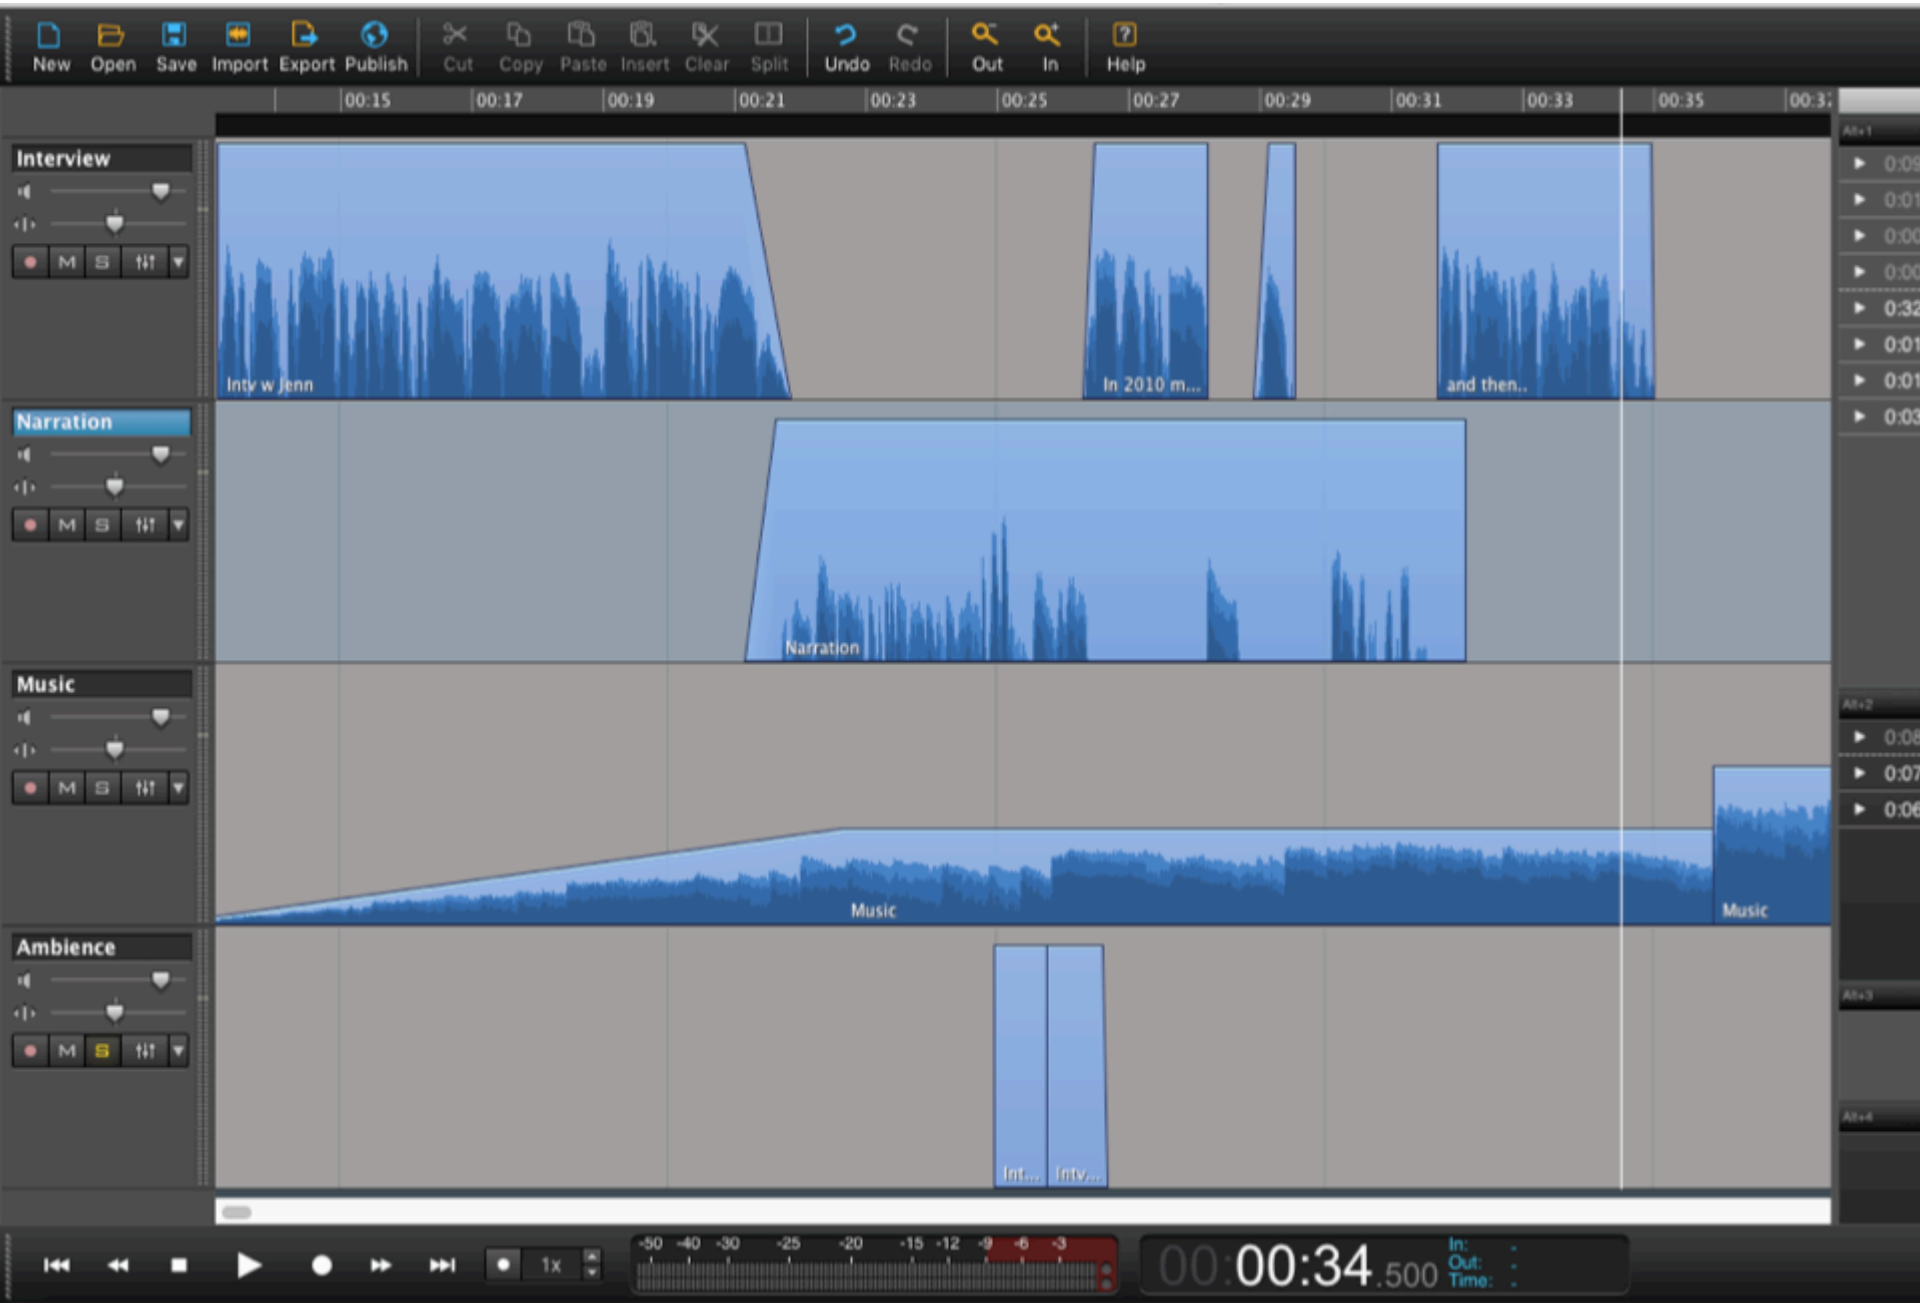

Water Gathering II

Open Waters: Introductions, reflections...

The Narrows: Report feedback

Tidal Shift: Now what?

Collective vision for water in Canada

Podcast editing team:

Tim Anaviapik-
Soucie

Clifford Paul

George Russell, Jr.

Heather
Castleden

Ashlee Cunsolo

Sherilee Harper

Debbie Martin

Catherine Hart

Water Dialogues
PODCAST

Clip 1

(To listen visit www.WaterDialogues.ca)

Guy Freedman
Albert Dumont
Angeline Gillis

Water Dialogues
PODCAST

Clip 2

(To listen visit www.WaterDialogues.ca)

Will Goodon
Angeline Gillis
Clifford Paul

Water Dialogues
PODCAST

Clip 3

(To listen visit www.WaterDialogues.ca)

Erika Perrier
Barbara Hill
Albert Marshall

Water Dialogues
PODCAST

Clip 4

(To listen visit www.WaterDialogues.ca)

Jamal Shirley
Tim Anaviapik-Soucie

Water Dialogues
PODCAST

Clip 5

(To listen visit www.WaterDialogues.ca)

Cheryl Bartlett

Ken Paul

via Skype

Group discussion:

1. What is your relationship with water where you live?
2. What challenges do you face in your community with respect to water?
3. What would you like to see happen?
What role do you envision for community members, women, youth, elders?

www.WaterDialogues.ca

Lindsay Day, MSc Candidate
University of Guelph
lday02@uoguelph.ca